Austin Dragon Boat Festival

Where: Festival Beach, 2101 Jesse E Segovia St

When: Saturday and Sunday, 9am—4pm

What: Watch spectacular 40-foot long boats racing to recreate a two-thousand year old Chinese tradition on Austin's beautiful Lady Bird Lake. Qu Yuan (340-278 BC) was a beloved scholar of the people and a minister to the King of Chu during the Warring States Period. Unfortunately, the King had him exiled after taking advice from some corrupt officials. After learning of the capture of his country's capital, Qu Yuan committed suicide by jumping into the Mi Luo River in protest of the corruption of the era.

Legend is that people got into boats and raced to save him, but were unsuccessful. They hoped to scare away the fish and evil spirits by beating drums and splashing the water with paddles; which later becomes the sport of dragon boating. For festivals and races, the dragon boat is adorned with a dragon head and tail, and each race always begins with a dotting of the eye ceremony, symbolizing the awakening of the dragon.

How much: FREE!!!!
